ROCKY POINT resort

Location

On the Northwest shore of Upper Klamath Lake in the Winema National Forest, Rocky Point Resort offers Southern Oregon's finest facilities for hunting, fishing, boating, wildlife enthusiasts and camera buffs.

Upper Klamath National Wildlife Refuge

Rocky Point Resort fronts on the Upper Klamath National Wildlife Refuge, a year round haven for waterfowl and other wildlife. Otters, mink, raccoons, deer and a host of other wildlife can be observed in this scenic area. The majestic bald eagle is master of the sky, thrilling visitors with their shrill cry as they swoop downward to snare trout from the lake.

Fishing

Upper Klamath Lake offers some of the largest rainbow trout found anywhere in the country. 3-6 pound rainbows are common, 8-10 pounders plentiful, with fish to 20 pounds hooked but seldom landed.

There are numerous other rivers and lakes within an hours drive of Rocky Point, including the famous Williamson River.

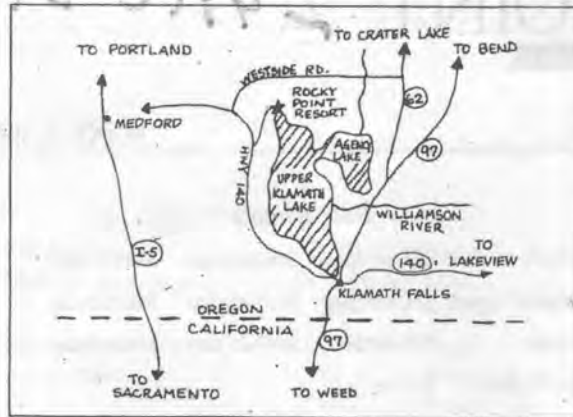

Information on Guides for Upper Klamath as well as other area fishing waters are available through the resort.

Boating

Upper Klamath is the largest lake in Oregon covering an area of 133 square miles, approximately 28 miles long.

Nearly ten miles of canoe and kayak trails lace waterways through the National Wildlife Refuge that lies just off the docks at Rocky Point Resort. Sail boating is popular on the body of the lake. Sail boats and other water craft are frequent visitors to the Resort where overnight berthing is available.

Camera Buffs

Rocky Point offers a breath taking panorama whatever the season. Sunsets are softly reflected in the lake year round making The Restaurant at Rocky Point an area favorite.

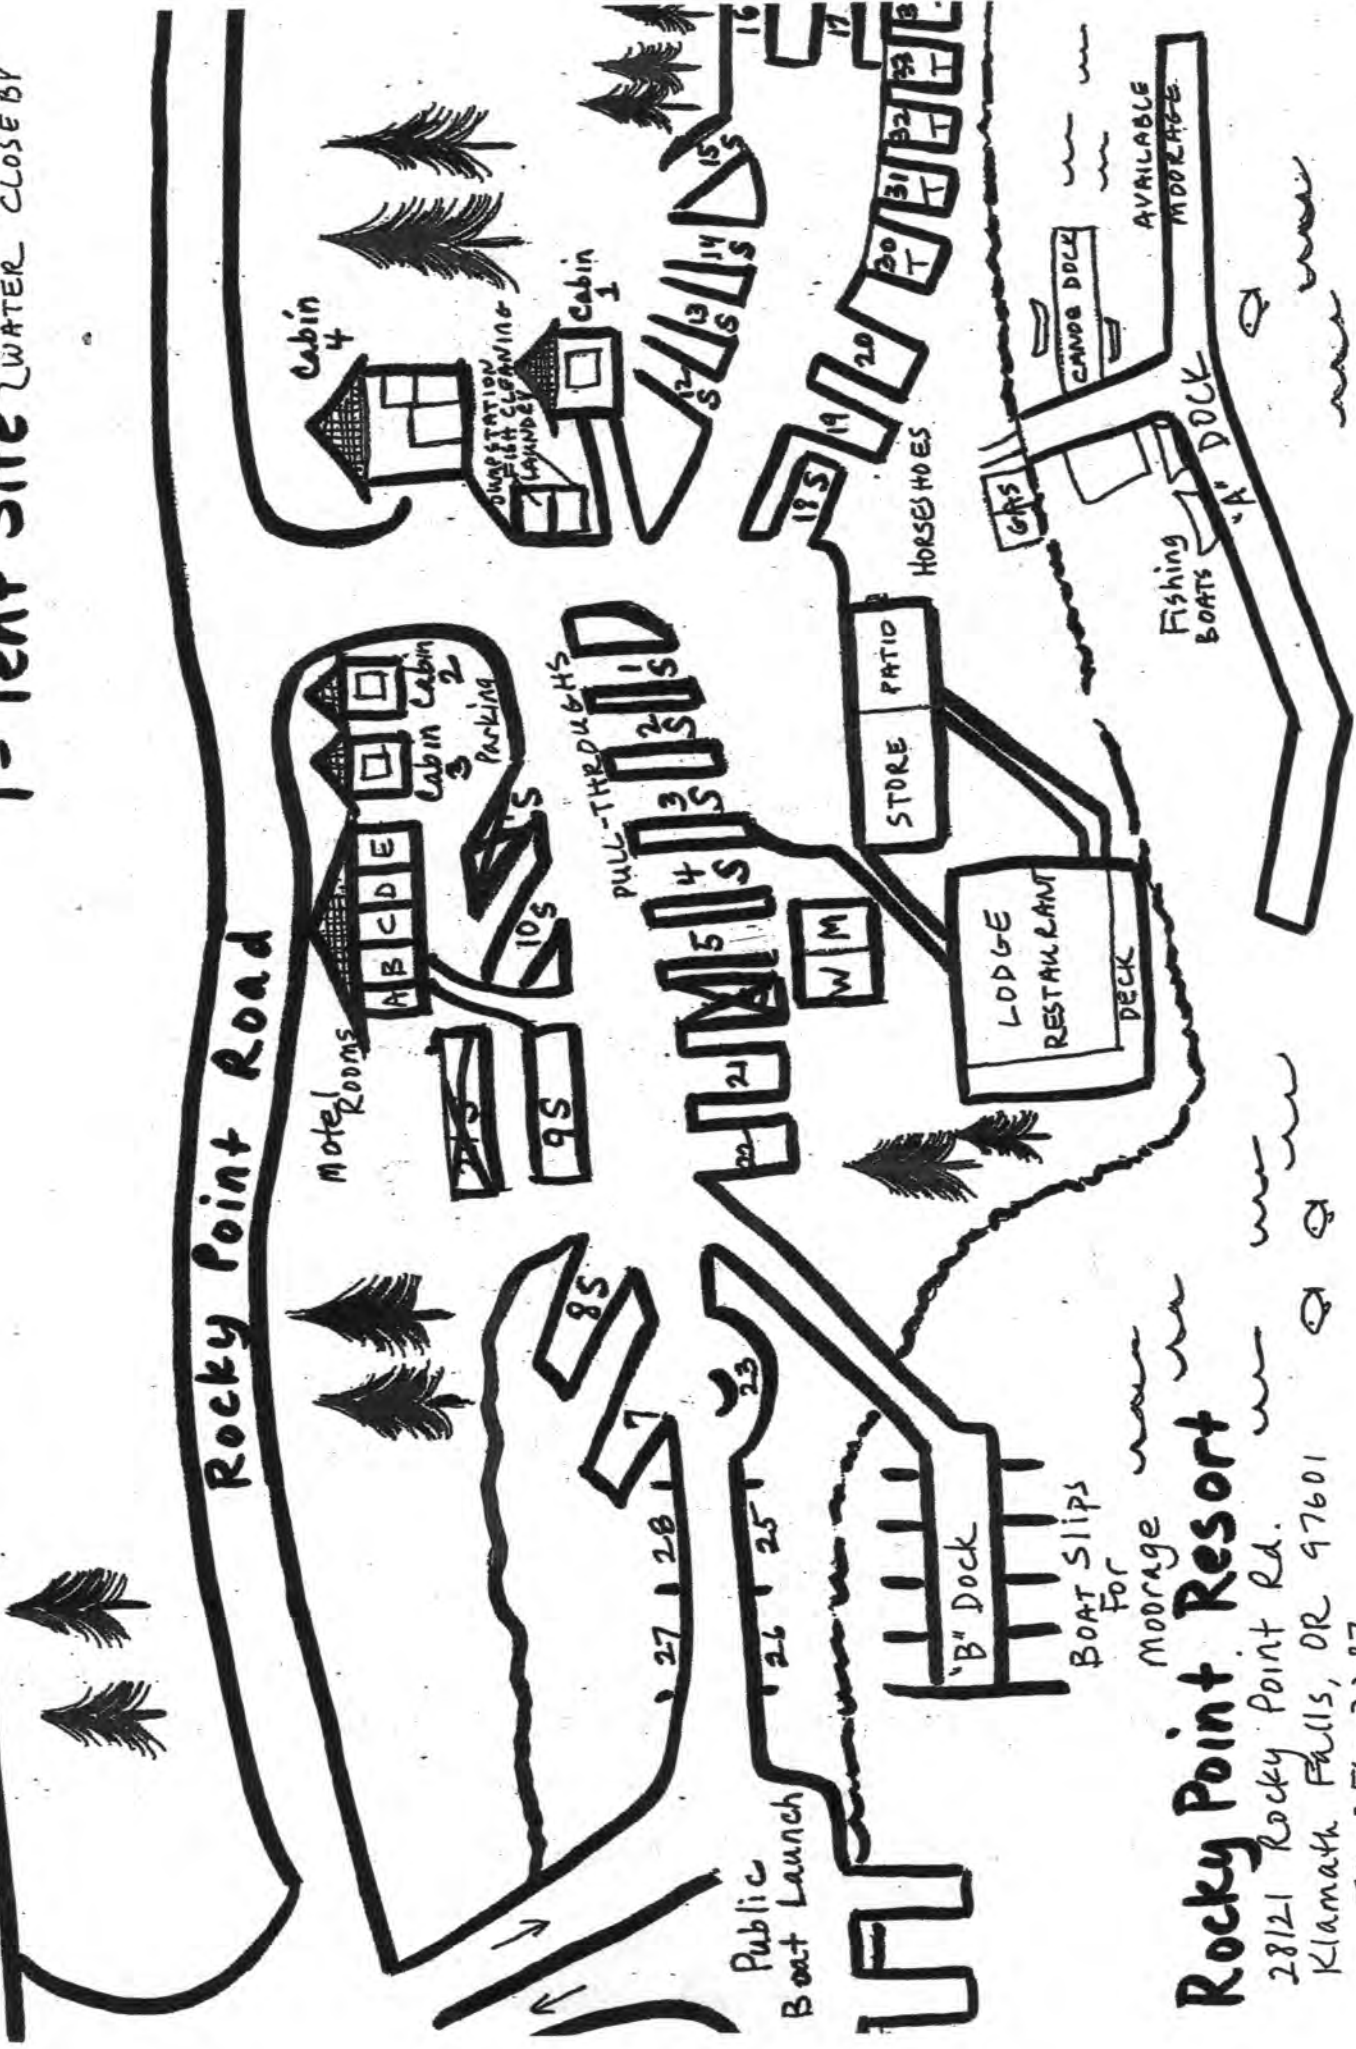

Sunrises, especially fall through spring, are simply spectacular. Golden aspens set in towering pines on the shores of the lake each fall present a brilliant palate of colors to photographers.
